HOSPITAL SEEKS TO SAVE ITSELF FROM NEW LOSSES

Queen's Hospital Superintendent Tells How Institution Suffers Under Act

The Compensation Act is "all wrong," according to Queen's hospital authorities and they have started operations this week to correct what they term the evil as far as they are concerned. Startling developments are promised.

Werner Roehl, superintendent of Queen's hospital, has inserted an advertisement in a local publication to the effect that hereafter all employers, whether indemnified or not by compensation insurance, will be held liable for all hospital charges incurred in the treatment of employees received at their instance.

Roehl wasn't a bit backward about explaining the reason for the "ad" to a Star-Bulletin representative today. "The Queen's hospital has been the goat so long in this compensation matter that something definite and final will be done," he said. "We have been taking compensation patients here for months and invariably receiving only a small part of the cost of their treatment. From now on we will not take cases if payment in full for their care is not guaranteed beforehand."

To Treat Desperate Cases. Roehl says the Queen's hospital will certainly not refuse desperate or serious cases, but the ordinary accident and fracture kind will be turned back to the emergency hospital if not accompanied by the required guarantee from the employer.

"Most ordinary fracture cases bring about $50 in compensation insurance," says Roehl, "and it is the sense of the law that these cases be treated and cured inside of two weeks. In most cases this is impossible and while we are paying our grocer and meat and light and nurse bills and all the rest the attending doctor usually draws out his full fee and leaves us a few dollars for several weeks' trouble and expense. It isn't right nor fair and we will not tolerate it any more."

Roehl said this morning that if the Queen's hospital were a paying proposition there wouldn't be so much objection to the injustice of the compensation workings, but the institution is behind several hundred dollars every month, he says, and must make up the lacking.

Counter Publicity Threatened. Now that he has warned the employers by publicity, Roehl says some of them have announced their intention of starting a counter publicity campaign to the effect that they will not be responsible for any accident expenses over and above that provided by the regular compensation methods.

"What will the Queen's hospital do with a case," he was asked, "which the employers will not guarantee and which the hospital authorities are sure will cost more than the money allotted for it?"

May Refuse Cases. "Unless it is a very serious case we will refuse it," said Roehl. "It can go to the emergency hospital or elsewhere. We are not obliged to take it and since we are not to be paid, why should we?"

The physicians have an idea what their fee will be shortly after they start treating a patient, says Roehl, and make haste to draw it out in full. By the time the cost of the case at the hospital has been figured there is little money left to meet it.

"In most of the $50 cases that amount wouldn't be enough for the hospital charges alone," he declares, "for it is impossible to turn out some fracture cases in less than six weeks. After the physician has taken about $35 of this you can see where we get off at."

MAN SLASHES WIFE TO DEATH AND KILLS SELF WITH POCKET KNIFE

Gomes decided she was going with another man. The wife called him names, so the sister says, ran into the house and slammed the door. With Murder shining in his eyes, Gomes smashed through the glass door, throttled his wife with one hand and reached for the knife with his other. Then the tragedy came.

Both bodies are now at the city morgue and an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Mrs. Gomes is survived here by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Kalilikane, who live at the corner of Queen and Cooke streets; a brother, George Kalilikane, Jr.; and Mrs. Andrade and another married sister, also a brother in Alaska. Gomes has relatives in Maui.

The murdered woman was about 26 years old and her husband a year older.

Seeks Wife's Arrest.

Gomes visited the federal court yesterday morning and asked Marshal J. J. Smiddy to have his wife arrested, alleging that she was living in Honolulu with a street car conductor. He told Smiddy that he had met the conductor and his wife on the street last Saturday evening, said to his wife, "You know me," or words to that effect, and then grabbed her by the arm. He said that the conductor told him not to make a scene on the street, but that he insisted that he see his wife alone. The conductor he added, interfered and would not allow him, Gomes, to talk to her.

Marshal Smiddy told Gomes to get the name of the conductor and that he would arrest him today. Gomes said that the conductor and Mrs. Gomes were living together in one of two local rooming houses.

Sent Wife Money. "Gomes told me that his wife had run away from Maui," said the marshal. "He showed me a letter in which she acknowledged money which he had sent her. She said in the letter that she was sick and could not go back to Maui. Gomes said later he was informed by friends that she was living with a 'white man' in Honolulu and that this led to his visit to Honolulu."

Gomes had promised to be at the marshal's office at 9 o'clock this morning with the name of the conductor.

NO TROUBLE AT HONOKAA, SAYS CORRESPONDENT

Word was received from the special correspondent of the Nippon Jiji on Hawaii today stating that there was no truth to the report that the laborers on Honokaa and other plantations were sending representatives to Honolulu to meet the plantation agents.

In the letter received this morning, which is from reliable sources, the writer states that the laborers on Hawaii are quiet and expect to receive their bonuses within the next few days. It was reported that the laborers were each contributing 25 cents to send delegates to Honolulu to petition the planters to pay the bonus, but, according to the Nippon Jiji correspondent, this is not true.

At the present time the laborers are satisfied that they will be paid their money as soon as arrangements can be made, according to the latest information received, and there has been no talk about a strike among the laborers on Honokaa and other plantations.

Dr. M. Negoro in an article in the Hawaii Hochi declares that the planters are sorry that they made the announcement of increased wages so soon, and that now they want to withdraw the announcement. But if they do withdraw the offer the laborers on all the islands will unite, according to Dr. Negoro, and a strike will be called.

In addressing the laborers he states that all laborers on the islands should unite and give help to the laborers on Hawaii, as if the laborers there are not paid every laborer on the island will be deprived of the bonus.
